

Thousands of people are walking around with a brave new look this week, thanks to all the shaving and colouring that's been going on and Brendan Reeves is one of them.

Brendan took part in the World's Greatest Shave last weekend to help raise money for the Leukaemia Foundation and he raised a total of $1710.

Brendan would like to thank all the people that sponsored him for the shave and hopes the Leukaemia Foundation will reach their $13.5 million target. This is the amount the Foundation needs to raise to keep supporting patients and families. The Foundation would also like to invest $4 million into research this year.

The World's Greatest Shave is a great cause and Brendan hopes that his small contribution will help aid some families dealing with this terrible illness.
